Doctor's Error Brings Human Guinea Pig Deaths

Researcher Uses Huge Overdose

*'Wrong Bottle'
Cited In Mishap*

VERMILLION, S. D., Aug. 17—An inquest will be resumed today into the deaths of two "human guinea pigs" from massive overdoses of a pain-killing drug in experiments at the University of South Dakota.

The two victims, Jack Clifford, 30 and Mrs. Ardy Pearson, 26, had volunteered to assist in the laboratory experiment aimed at determining the effectiveness of various drugs in relieving pain.

Dr. Louis F. Michalek, young medical researcher in his first month out of internship, told a coroner's jury in Vermillion yesterday that he mistakenly injected his two co-workers with 10 times the normal dosage of a new drug.

The doctor said he administered 100 milligrams of methadone, believing it was demerol. The normal dosage of methadone is 10 milligrams.

DR. MICHALEK told of "picking up the wrong bottle" in a tragic error, of realizing his mistake moments after giving the injections, and of the dramatic 24-hour fight to try to save the lives of the volunteer subjects.

Specialists were called in from Minneapolis, the two volunteers were placed in oxygen tents and all known antidotes were administered before the deaths Wednesday.

Dr. Michalek said he was about to give an injection to a third person when he realized his mistake.

The dean of the university medical school, Dr. Donald Slaughter, testified he had instructed Dr. Michalek to use morphine, but he said the other drugs were acceptable if used properly.

Dr. Michalek said he decided to use the other drugs when he found the morphine bottle empty.

State's Attorney Martin C. Weeks, who said the hearings may drag on for weeks, indicated he will decide after the inquest whether there will be any prosecution.

Meanwhile, an autopsy is being performed at the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis. The month-long experiments were to have involved the joint use of cortisone, one of the so-called wonder drugs, to determine whether a combination of the drugs was more effective than cortisone alone.

House Overrides Veto Of Bill To Hike Pensions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The House voted today to override President Truman's veto of a bill to increase pensions for veterans whose disabilities were non-service connected.

The vote was 318 to 45. This was 76 votes more than the two-thirds required to override a presidential veto.

The issue now goes to the Senate where another two-thirds vote to override would automatically make the bill a law.

The bill would increase monthly pensions for blind and disabled veterans from $60 and $72 to $120 whether their disabilities were service-incurred or not.

Debate on the veto was brief. The veterans committee, headed by Rep. Rankin, (D) Miss., a long time foe of Mr. Truman, charged that the President's estimate that the annual cost of the legislation at the end of this century would total $400 million a year "is a guess at best."

The measure also would extend the increased benefits to about 25,000 World War I veterans, about 500 World War II veterans and also provide for any disabled veteran of the Korean conflict.

President Truman objected to the bill on the grounds it applied only to pensions paid to disabled veterans whose disabilities had no connection with their military service.

MAC PROBERS HEAR VIEWS

Harriman Denies Yalta Was Sell-Out To Moscow

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—President's Adviser W. Averell Harriman today told the Senate committee investigating Gen. MacArthur's dismissal that "nothing done at Yalta" contributed to Chiang Kai-shek's loss of China.

The former ambassador to Moscow denied flatly that the United States "sold out" to Russia at the 1945 Yalta conference. He declared:

"Had Stalin honored these commitments taken at Yalta, Eastern Europe would be free today and the United Nations would be a truly effective organization for world security."

Harriman's statement was made public after Chairman Russell, (D) Ga., called the committee into session with a statement that he believes a report on the long inquiry might hamper the Kaesong truce talks.

REPUBLICAN members entered today's meeting prepared to offer a 100-page report signed by eight minority members. Sen. Bridges, (R) N. H., said the report would be offered.

The Republicans admittedly want a detailed summary for use as a "campaign reference" book in 1952.

But Sen. Knowland, (R) Calif., left the committee meeting and told a reporter that "there will not be an official committee report." He did not amplify the statement.

Harriman also contradicted testimony by former China Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley that President Truman had instructed him to try to modify terms of the Yalta agreement and that he tried to do so in Moscow.

He said Hurley's mission dealt only with two things—to promote the unification of China and to discuss with Stalin the timing of when to tell Chiang about the Yalta agreement.

Harriman, who is now trying to settle the oil crisis in Iran, also said:

1. The Joint Chiefs of Staff as

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—State Veterinarian H. G. Geyer warned Ohio cattlemen today that blackleg has appeared in a limited number of herds in eastern and southeastern Ohio. Dr. Geyer advised:

He further urged all cattle owners to contact their local veterinarians to learn routine preventive measures.

2. At the time of Yalta, Stalin had "carried out vital military agreements" which led Roosevelt to believe that a "definite commitment from Stalin was of supreme importance and would be of great value."

3. Chiang and his government accepted the terms of the Yalta agreement, but in negotiating treaties to fulfill the terms, made concessions to Russia which Harriman urged them not to grant.

4. At Yalta, President Roosevelt "unquestionably was not in good health," but had his objectives "clearly in mind" as the result of long preparation.

Ohio Tightening Its Marriage, Divorce Laws

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—There will be fewer Ohio marriages and divorces and more court clerks come Aug. 28, if Franklin County provides a fair example of what will happen under more restrictive new laws.

The new laws require any divorced person who wishes to marry again to supply complete records of all past divorces.

Blood test requirements are tightened by a provision that the physician who makes the analysis report must, in his presence, obtain the signature of the person tested—and it must compare with the signature on the marriage license application.

Probate Judge C. P. McClelland commented that many persons cannot even remember where they were divorced, let alone the number of their case.

He said these laws are "going to make it difficult for some persons to obtain marriage licenses and may force them to go to other states."

On the divorce side, there is a law coming up which sets the residential requirement at 90 days in a county instead of 30 days.

Another new law requires a court investigation of the family character in all divorces involving children under 14.

Court of Domestic Relations Judge Clayton Rose of Columbus estimates this means 130 investigations a month for him, and a whole new staff of investigators.

REDS HINT MIND CHANGE

Trucers Have Jolly Time, But Report No Progress

KAESONG, Aug. 17—The Communists indicated today they might accept a buffer zone generally along Korea's present no man's land as a truce conference subcommittee held its first secret huddle on the problem.

The new committee met in Kaesong for four hours in an atmosphere of informality and its members emerged from the session in apparent good spirits.

However, there was no disclosure of whether progress had been made toward ending the long deadlock on the question of where to locate a cease-fire line across the war-ridden peninsula.

As the four-man working committee went into session, Radio Peiping quoted Gen. Nam Il, top Red delegate, as having offered to negotiate a "reasonable" compromise on a buffer belt. Such a zone, he said, could meet the defense "requirements of both sides."

A POOLED dispatch from Kaesong quoted Communist newsmen there as saying Friday that the Reds might accept a demilitarized armistice area approximating the no man's land across which the opposing troops now face each other.

The Red correspondents told United Nations newsmen outside the subcommittee meeting room that the Communist demand for a 38th Parallel buffer zone was "not inflexible."

They said the parallel border area between North and South Korea "is not a clearcut line, as before, but can be adjusted."

During the day's discussions, the dispatch said, several outbursts of laughter inside the meeting room were heard by the correspondents standing outside the locked doors.

The UN and Communist committees, including two full-ranking delegates from each side, posed together on the steps of the Kaesong conference house as news photographers took their pictures.

For the first time since the armistice parley began July 10, Allied and Red delegates posed side by side. All seemed in good spirits.

Army Maj. Gen. Henry I. Hodes, one of the two UN delegates serving on the subcommittee, put his arm around North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee Saon Cho, as the cameramen snapped their photographs.

None of the delegates would comment on the day's talks which began shortly after 11 a. m. and adjourned at 4:22 p. m. There was a luncheon intermission of one hour and 20 minutes.

There was no announcement as to when the committee would

Licking County Man To Head Walnut Schools

Howard Hosler of Homer has been employed as superintendent of Walnut Township school.

Hosler was named Thursday night by the Walnut Township board of education to succeed Alfred F. Axe, who resigned, effective Aug. 31, after heading the school the last three years.

Hosler was graduated by Ohio State university in 1927 and has 23 years of teaching experience. He was superintendent of Homer schools in Licking County during the last five years.

The new Walnut administrator also taught in Coshocton, Whiteoak and Magnetic Springs. He is married and has four daughters, three of whom are married. The fourth daughter is an eighth grader.

UN officials said no communications or news briefings on the committee's work would be given until the Kaesong conference is summoned back into plenary session to receive the recommendations of the subbody. The full parley is in temporary suspension.

Black Mart Probe Set

Cattle Buyers Seeking Aid

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Price Stabilizer DiSalle today announced immediate launching of a nationwide campaign to investigate reports of cattle black markets and to enforce price ceilings on beef animals.

DiSalle disclosed at the same time that the Office of Price Stabilization is considering making the ceilings binding on sellers as well as buyers and applying the price lids to individual animals.

The price stabilizer said OPS has received "numerous complaints from packers they were unable to purchase cattle at the ceiling price" since Congress knocked out the agency's slaughtering quota authority.

The quota system allocated available livestock supplies to all registered slaughterers on the basis of the amount they killed last year. DiSalle commented:

"Since we are no longer able to channel meat into regular normal channels through the slaughter quota system, there are growing indications of maldistribution. This situation, of course, puts a strain on legal prices and threatens to move the available supply into fewer areas where higher and illegal prices may be obtainable."

"There are indications that ceiling price violators are outbidding legitimate slaughterers and are extending their operations far beyond normal. As a result honest packers in the absence of slaughter quotas find it difficult to get cattle at the legal prices."

Quarter-Ton Cake Is Whipped Up

UPPER SANDUSKY, Aug. 17—Ever try whipping 1,440 eggs together with 70 pounds of flour, 50 quarts of milk and a 30-pound pinch of salt to make a cake?

An Upper Sandusky baker tried just that today and came up with a four-tier quarter-ton cake for the Citizens' First National Bank's 88th birthday party.

The whole Wyandot County seat of just over 5,000 citizens has been invited to come to the party and devour the mammoth cake.

Penn State Shuns Ousted Cadet

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Aug. 17—Pennsylvania State college indicated today its doors were closed to cadets ousted from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point for cribbing.

Acting Dean C. O. Williams reported that one of the dismissed cadets had sought admission to Penn State. Williams said that students seeking to transfer to Penn State must present evidence of "good standing" at the institution attended previously and that they are "readmissible" to that school.

YANKS HAVEN'T GONE SOFT

President Urges Hiring Of Handicapped Workers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—President Truman said today that the defense program "badly" needs physically handicapped workers and appealed to industry to make the "fullest and wisest use of all our resources."

Speaking before the President's Committee on National Employment-Physically Handicapped Week, Mr. Truman said that many crippled workers are highly trained and have specialized abilities. He added:

"We need them badly. We need to use their skills and energies in our great program of defense production to help us win the struggle for a just and lasting peace."

"The production job ahead of us calls for the fullest and wisest use of all our resources—especially of our manpower."

Mr. Truman warned that as defense production expands "there are going to be more and more jobs and it will be harder and harder to find people to fill them."

Lockbourne Air Base Officials Probe Accident

Lockbourne Air Force Base officials continued an investigation Friday into the case of an F-34 jet fighter plane which accidentally fired into two houses, an auto and a trailer in Groveport.

Officers said that the firing mechanism on the fighter's twin .50-caliber guns short-circuited as it was coming in for an emergency landing, and 1,700 rounds of ammunition were sprayed out over Groveport and the surrounding farmland.

Capt. Nelson J. McDonald of Chicago, pilot of the craft which was attached to the 166th Fighter Squadron, said the cabin of his plane became overheated and the guns "ran away with him" when he turned back for landing.

Normally quiet Groveport was transformed into a "near panic" stricken community as bullets fell in a six-block long residential pathway while housewives, children and bystanders ducked for cover. No injuries but many close calls were reported.

One of the machinegun slugs shot away part of the lattice-work on the front porch of Groveport Mayor Clarence Stevenson.

Ex-GIs Say They Will Fight Case

Defense Department Hit In Statement

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Two former U. S. Army secret agents, accused by the Defense Department of the wartime "cloak and dagger" slaying of Major William V. Holohan in Italy, identified themselves today and both called the murder story a lie.

Both also made it plain they will fight to the last ditch against any possible attempt by the Italian government to charge them with the 1944 killing and extradite them to Italy for trial.

Today's statements of self-identification and denial came from ex-Army Lieutenant Aldo Icardi, 30, and former Army Sergeant Carl G. Lo Dolce, 29.

Icardi made his statement in Pittsburgh at the home of his parents. Lo Dolce issued his statement in Rochester, N. Y., where he lives.

Both were named in the Defense Department announcement as the slayers of Major Holohan, who, it said, was poisoned and shot on Dec. 6, 1944, while he and the other two men were working in German-occupied Italy for the super-secret Office of Strategic Services.

ICARDI WHO was employed by the Pan American Grace Airways legal department in New York City but resigned the job when the Defense Department story broke, said in his statement:

"The charges against me are fantastic and I am confident that I shall be completely vindicated. 'The Defense Department has never confronted me with the charges it now makes. The department has obviously prejudged the case without even giving me the opportunity to make a statement to it."

"The Defense Department admits that it has no jurisdiction whatsoever in this matter and its unprecedented trial by press and radio violates the most elemental concept of justice and due process."

"The alleged attempt to 'shanghai' me back to Italy is hardly worthy of belief. This matter has been a cause celebre in the Italian press for many months and the wildest stories imaginable have been printed."

"A trial in Italy would be a farce. I am amazed that the Defense Department would even suggest that Italy—at the time an enemy country—has any authority over members of its own armed forces."

LO DOLCE was equally emphatic in his statement issued today. He said:

"I am shocked and astounded at the alleged confession and accusations made during the last few days against me."

"I served in the armed forces of the United States government for a period of 34 months and I am proud of my war record. During the time I was with the Office of Strategic Services I carried out my orders as an en-

This Husband Went Too Far

MIAMI, Aug. 17—Divorce papers charging a Miami husband with trying to trade his wife and their three children for a new car are on file today.

Mrs. Arlene Lamb said she managed to forgive her mate for unzipping a woman's dress at a party "almost entirely exposing her." But she decided he was "immature and emotionally unstable" when he offered to trade his wife, their 11-year-old twins and an older daughter for a new car.

Lockbourne Airforce Base officials continued an investigation Friday into the case of an F-34 jet fighter plane which accidentally fired into two houses, an auto and a trailer in Groveport.

Officers said that the firing mechanism on the fighter's twin .50-caliber guns short-circuited as it was coming in for an emergency landing, and 1,700 rounds of ammunition were sprayed over Groveport and the surrounding farmland.

Capt. Nelson J. McDonald of Chicago, pilot of the craft which was attached to the 168th Fighter Squadron, said the cabin of his plane became overheated and the guns "ran away with him" when he turned back for landing.

Normally quiet Groveport was transformed into a "near panic" stricken community as bullets fell in a six-block long residential pathway while housewives, children and bystanders ducked for cover. No injuries but many close calls were reported.

One of the machinegun slugs shot away part of the lattice-work on the front porch of Groveport Mayor Clarence Stevenson.

New Idle Pay Claims Drop To Only Six

New claims for unemployment benefits in Circleville's Bureau of Unemployment Compensation office dropped to only six last week.

The new low mark was a 50 percent decrease from the low mark of 12 recorded here a week before.

Also sharply decreasing during the period here were continued claims, filed by persons unemployed for more than one week.

Continued claims dropped to only 23 last week after having reached a high mark of 97 the week before. The local canning season and resumption of work in the GE plant are believed the causes for the sharp decreases in claims here.

Circleville's low unemployment marks put it far below the figures shown by Hillsboro's office, while just under the figures posted by Washington C. H.

Hillsboro recorded 30 new claims during last week, while its continued claims numbered 91. Washington recorded only seven new claims for the week, although its continued claims increased from 26 to 40.

Camp Meeting Drawing Large Audiences Here

The camp meeting on East Ohio Street is now in progress with the crowds increasing rapidly each day.

Dormitories, cottages, and tents are all full and many trailers are being placed on the grounds. Quite a number of the names of states are noted on the license tags of the automobiles.

The schedule of evangelistic services are as follows: Friday evening at 7:30, Rev. Morton Dorsey will be the speaker; Saturday at 11 a. m., Dr. T. M. Anderson, speaker; at 7:30 p. m., Dr. C. I. Armstrong, speaker.

Sunday there will be three great evangelistic services and a full camp meeting week following. Sunday afternoon from two to three o'clock the meeting will be broadcast directly from the platform over radio station WHKC, Columbus. The following Sunday afternoon, the broadcast will be duplicated. The camp meeting will close with the night service on Sunday, Aug. 26.

Guard-Killer Is Captured On Street Car

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—Hulking Harry Williams, condemned rapist-slayer who killed a guard while making a daring escape from death row in the Cook County jail, was seized last night reading a Bible on a street car.

Homicide detectives spotted the 20-year-old desperado when a concentrated search swung to Chicago's south side after he had sought sanctuary at the home of a woman relative.

One of the detectives swung a squad car in front of the street car halting the trolley. Three of his partners entered the car with drawn guns while Williams fingered a copy of the New Testament.

One of the detectives sat down beside Williams and, pressing a gun into his side, told the youth he was under arrest.

Earlier, Williams had sought aid at the home of Mrs. Addie Hearn, 44, a distant woman relative who had nursed him when he was a child.

Mrs. Hearn, who told police she had feared he would come, immediately telephoned police. Williams continued ringing her doorbell until the wail of approaching police sirens caused him to flee.

Williams has been sentenced to die in the electric chair Sept. 14 for the murder of a woman. He fled from the county jail Tuesday by climbing up a ventilator shaft to the roof of a cell block from where he lowered himself to the jail yard with ropes woven from bed sheets.

He killed George Turley, 48, while Turley was at his post in a guard tower and made his way over the outside wall.

Three Places Here Entered By Burglars

Two Circleville businesses and a residence were reported broken into Thursday night.

City police reported breakins of the Wood Implement Co. building on Edison avenue and the residence of Jack Hennis on South Scioto street.

County lawmen were called to investigate a breakin of the Guernsey Dairy immediately outside the city limits on North Court street.

Police were told thieves entered through a window at the implement store and that an undetermined amount of cash was missing.

The Hennis home also was entered through a window, although nothing was reported missing. Police Friday were checking on footprints found on a sheet in the residence.

Deputy Jack Dewey said the Guernsey Dairy store was entered through a rear door, where the lock had been broken by a bar.

The office was ransacked, although nothing was reported missing. Leaving the office, the thieves broke open a cigaret machine and made off with the change and cigarets.

Inasmuch as said missions were of a highly confidential nature and made under the direction of the OSS there is no question in my mind that when the proper authorities reveal the complete and true story the disclosures will prove I am innocent."

The Defense Department in its announcement said Major Holohan was slain for two reasons—$100,000 in cash and gold he was carrying, and to permit Allied arms to be turned over to the Communist partisans in Italy, a move which Holohan had prevented.

Lo Dolce flatly repudiated published versions of an alleged "confession" he purportedly signed, admitting guilt in the Holohan case.

Icardi, in Pittsburgh, posed for news photographers with his wife, Eleanor, and their two children, Katherine, 4, and Lawrence, 14 months. He repeatedly charged that the Holohan story put out by the Defense Department was "fantastic" and wholly false.

In Rome, Italian officials indicated that extradition of the two men may be sought this fall. An Italian prosecutor reportedly is preparing to file a complaint with the U. S. Justice Department upon which extradition proceedings can be based.

Diamond Ring Case Closed; It Is Returned

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17 — The case of the diamond ring given to State Motor Vehicle Registrar Robert E. Foley is all but closed today—and Foley no longer has the ring.

State Highway Director T. J. Kauer admitted last night that auditors in the Bureau of Motor Vehicles had given the ring to their chief. But Kauer added:

"He has returned the ring and each of the employees has received his money back."

The highway chief said he would make a report on the incident to Governor Lausche as soon as he received the auditors' statement.

The gift has been explained as a bit of recognition for Foley's "advance through the ranks," and as a mark of appreciation for his efforts in obtaining salary increases for his employees. The governor ordered the return of the ring.

New Hollander Seeks Divorce

Petition requesting divorce has been filed in Pickaway County common pleas court by Anna Louise Sanders against Stanley Sanders, both of New Holland.

The petition claims the couple was married May 2, 1936, in New Vienna, and has three children, ages 14, 10 and eight.

Accusing the husband of extreme cruelty and gross neglect, the petition asks for divorce, custody of the minor children, household goods, support for the children and other relief.

'Hard' Water Said Harmful

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—A Chicago businessman said today that people take on too many "hard" drinks. In this case, he referred to water.

Emmett J. Culligan said 85 percent of the water in America is hard and he believes calcium and magnesium are responsible for many of man's ills. He also said dairy cows drinking hard water give less milk.

Culligan is founder of a soft water service.

Woman, 61, Pays Fine After Wreck

Zela Harris, 61, of Cambridge, was fined $25 and costs Thursday in the court of Magistrate Hoadley Brintlinger in Ashville for reckless operation.

Airforce Aide Cited For Black Market Deal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Justice Department reports it is attempting to recover $136,000 from an Airforce finance officer who was accused of exchanging government money on the Turkish black market at a profit.

The case came to light when the government filed a petition in the Fairfax, Va., circuit court asking that the man's bank accounts and a Falls Church, Va., house be attached.

The department identified the man as Chief Warrant Officer Kenneth E. Roberson and said he has been serving with the U. S. air attaché at Ankara, Turkey, since 1949.

The Justice Department contends that Roberson exchanged United States Treasury checks for Turkish lira on the black market in Ankara and pocketed the profit, although he deposited all that was due the government before the conversion.

2 More Local Men Graduated

Two more Pickaway County men have been graduated from 16-week basic training course with the 5th Infantry Division in Indiantown Gap, Pa.

They are Allen W. McKittrick and Austin Hoover, both of Circleville Route 2.

Schooling included the use of light and heavy infantry weapons, how to live in the field and combat tactics. Combat-toughened veterans of World War II conducted most of the training with the famed Fifth "Red Diamond" Division.

Guard-Killer Is Captured On Street Car

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—Hulking Harry Williams, condemned rapist-slayer who killed a guard while making a daring escape from death row in the Cook County jail, was seized last night reading a Bible on a street car.

Homicide detectives spotted the 20-year-old desperado when a concentrated search swung to Chicago's south side after he had sought sanctuary at the home of a woman relative.

One of the detectives swung a squad car in front of the street car halting the trolley. Three of his partners entered the car with drawn guns while Williams fingered a copy of the New Testament.

One of the detectives sat down beside Williams and, pressing a gun into his side, told the youth he was under arrest.

Earlier, Williams had sought aid at the home of Mrs. Addie Hearn, 44, a distant woman relative who had nursed him when he was a child.

Mrs. Hearn, who told police she had feared he would come, immediately telephoned police. Williams continued ringing her doorbell until the wail of apatronsing police sirens caused him to flee.

Williams has been sentenced to die in the electric chair Sept. 14 for the murder of a woman. He fled from the county jail Tuesday by climbing up a ventillator shaft to the roof of a cell block from where he lowered himself to the jail yard with ropes woven from bed sheets.

He killed George Turley, 48, while Turley was at his post in a guard tower and made his way over the outside wall.

Three Places Here Entered By Burglars

Two Circleville businesses and a residence were reported broken into Thursday night.

City police reported breakins of the Wood Implement Co. building on Edison avenue and the residence of Jack Hennis on South Scioto street.

County lawmen were called to investigate a breakin of the Guernsey Dairy immediately outside the city limits on North Court street.

Police were told thieves entered through a window at the implement store and that an undetermined amount of cash was missing.

The Hennis home also was entered through a window, although nothing was reported missing. Police Friday were checking on footprints found on a sheet in the residence.

Deputy Jack Dewey said the Guernsey Dairy store was entered through a rear door, where the lock had been broken by a bar.

The office was ransacked, although nothing was reported missing. Leaving the office, the thieves broke open a cigaret machine and made off with the change and cigarets.

Victim Dies

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17 — Clayton Bowers, 27, who died Wednesday of burns suffered Saturday in an Ohio State university laboratory explosion, will be buried today in Lebanon, Ind.

"Many and all facts pertaining to my activities with the OSS are known to the War Department as well as to the OSS.

"I regret that I cannot disclose the details of the missions which I participated in during World War II. Inasmuch as said missions were of a highly confidential nature and made under the direction of the OSS there is no question in my mind that when the proper authorities reveal the complete and true story the disclosures will prove I am innocent."

The Defense Department in its announcement said Major Holohan was slain for two reasons—$100,000 in cash and gold he was carrying, and to permit Allied arms to be turned over to the Communist partisans in Italy, a move which Holohan had prevented.

Lo Dolce flatly repudiated published versions of an alleged "confession" he purportedly signed, admitting guilt in the Holohan case.

Lo Dolce, in Pittsburgh, posed for news photographers with his wife, Eleanor, and their two children, Katherine, 4, and Lawrence, 14 months. He repeatedly charged that the Holohan story put out by the Defense Department was "fantastic" and wholly false.

In Rome, Italian officials indicated that extradition of the two men may be sought this fall. An Italian prosecutor reportedly is preparing to file a complaint with the U. S. Justice Department upon which extradition proceedings can be based.

OPS Pricing Chart Offered

Free copies of a simplified table which enables retail grocers to figure retail ceiling prices for food items under the QPS markup regulations at a glance are available at the Columbus district Office of Price Stabilization.

Edward F. Wagner, district OPS director, said similar booklets, printed privately, are being sold to retailers at prices from 50 cents to $2.

Free copies of the table are available and they will be distributed on a first come first serve basis, according to Wagner. They will be mailed out upon request, he said. A similar booklet is available for wholesalers.

Airforce Aide Cited For Black Market Deal

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Justice Department reports it is attempting to recover $136,000 from an Airforce finance officer who was accused of exchanging government money on the Turkish black market at a profit.

The case came to light when the government filed a petition in the Fairfax, Va., circuit court asking that the man's bank accounts and a Falls Church, Va., house be attached.

The department identified the man as Chief Warrant Officer Kenneth E. Roberson and said he has been serving with the U. S. air attaché at Ankara, Turkey, since 1949.

The Justice Department contends that Roberson exchanged United States Treasury checks for Turkish lira on the black market in Ankara and pocketed the profit, although he deposited all that was due the government before the conversion.

2 More Local Men Graduated

Two more Pickaway County men have been graduated from 16-week basic training course with the 5th Infantry Division in Indiantown Gap, Pa.

They are Allen W. McKittrick and Austin Hoover, both of Circleville Route 2.

Schooling included the use of light and heavy infantry weapons, how to live in the field and combat tactics. Combat-toughened veterans of World War II conducted most of the training with the famed Fifth "Red Diamond" Division.

The Near East— Next Red Victim?

By KINGSBURY SMITH
Europe Manager, International News Service

Editor's Note: The dangers inherent in the lack of a unified Western policy on Near Eastern problems are emphasized in the following fifth article of a series.

ANKARA, Aug. 17 — Western Big Three blundering in the Near East is described today as threatening to cause that vital strategic area to be lost by default to Soviet subversion.

During the course of a survey trip through the heart of the Near East, astonishment and dismay was widely expressed to this correspondent over the alleged lack of a strong, well-defined, properly coordinated and efficiently executed common policy on the part of the American, British and French governments.

Confusion is being created among the Near Eastern people by the spectacle of local representatives of the Big Three Western Allies working not infrequently at cross purposes in political, economic and even military policies.

ONE OF THE major weaknesses cited with regard to the Western position in the Near and Middle East is Great Britain's reluctance to renounce its traditionally predominant role in this region in favor of American or joint Big Three leadership.

The British are suspected of wishing to use the security issue as a means of maintaining their mastery of the Middle East.

The natives of the Near and Middle Eastern countries think Britain wants to become the chief instrument for their protection in order to preserve and restore dwindling power and prestige in an area which she has long considered her own sphere of influence.

The fact, however, is that the Near and Middle East no longer wants British leadership.

From Tehran to Cairo to Ankara, British supremacy is being challenged. Persia is trying to purge herself of British domination directed through the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. for nearly fifty years.

Egypt is striving to secure release from its alliance with Brit-

He Is Very Durable Lad

SAN ANGELO, Tex., Aug. 17 —Mrs. Lorraine F. Barnhard of Houston is convinced that one of her sons is a very durable young man.

While she was driving about 50 miles an hour today near San Angelo, one of her sons informed her, "Mom, John fell out."

She stopped the car and found two-year-old John getting up from the pavement about 300 feet back.

Except for minor bruises, the youngster was apparently none the worse for his experience.

New Boston Still Has Trouble On City-Village Status

NEW BOSTON, Aug. 17—New Boston, the "now-it's-a-city, now it's-not" Scioto County community, is the loser today in a battle to hold a city primary election on the grounds it has already held primaries as a village.

A 2-1 decision by fourth district judges has upheld last week's common pleas court ruling barring a primary election based on New Boston's recent return from village to city status.

Two of three appeals court judges upheld Common Pleas Judge Howard Goldsberry of Ross County who ruled that the legislature had specified no municipality could hold two primary elections.

The trouble all started when the U. S. Census Bureau recently classified New Boston a village after 31 years as a city declaring it had only 4,800 residents.

Since New Boston was under the 5,000-population minimum needed for a city, the "village" held party primaries for village officials last May. By a special legislative act shortly after, however, New Boston counted its own noses and came up with 5,200 whereupon Secretary of State Ted W. Brown officially tagged New Boston a city again.

The Scioto County election board has announced it will go ahead with plans for election of city officials next November on an independent ballot, without party designation.

Navy Says Reds May Use Subs

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Navy Secretary Kimball has warned that the Russians may throw submarines into the Korean war if current peace talks are not successful.

Kimball told a radio audience that "we don't have as many submarines as the Russians, but we don't need as many" because of the strength of the rest of the U. S. Navy.

The recently appointed Navy secretary said that "Korea is ideally suited to naval warfare—they have two coasts not too far apart."

Boys are funny. They apparently prefer to date girls who already have dates and they dance with girls who dance with other boys. When you attend school dances, don't dance with girls so much. Wait for a boy to ask you, even if you think you'll die of embarrassment. Stand up between dances (so boys can see your height; they like to know how tall a girl is before they ask her) and stand near where the boys ask the girls for dances (they hate to barge through a big group of girls to find one to ask). Once you start dancing with boys, others will ask you. Why not ask girl friends to arrange double dates including you? Go where others will see you with a date.

Columbus OKs Water Expansion

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—A long-range program to build up Columbus water supplies is underway today.

City council Wednesday put its stamp of approval on the $12.5 million plan and authorized the issuance of $4 million in notes by Nov. 1.

The program includes Hoover dam and reservoir.

An estimated $900,000 of the first notes will pay for a water main extension to boost supplies to the north side.

Judge Can't Live On $10,000 Wage

Latin Valentino Plans Apology

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—Ramon Font-Felizola, the collegiate Venezuelan Valentino, said today he will make a public apology in September to the professors of Bridgeport university.

Font-Felizola, perennial sophomore who never passed a course in four years at Bridgeport, will thank his teachers for putting up with him so long.

The 22-year-old South American, more interested in the dance than the diploma, says he wants his professors to know his failure "shouldn't be taken as any reflection on their ability as teachers."

HYPHENATED VOTERS

POLITICAL managers are currently concerning themselves with the fact that there are more than 10,000,000 foreign born persons in the United States and approximately 25,000,000 natives of foreign or mixed parentage. There are 6,000,000 German-Americans, more than 3,000,000 Polish-Americans, and approximately 3,000,000 of Russian stock.

The political concern is how to shape partisan policies to attract these foreign born or first generation voters. But if the politicians are the sincere patriots they profess to be they will adopt policies designed to further the vital interests of the United States of America and let the hyphenated votes fall where they will.

These foreign born or first generation Americans are undoubtedly predominantly patriotic and live in America because they esteem it above their native lands. Where such is not the case, it is a wicked maneuver to cater to them. It is as evil an expediency as one could think of to plot cutting the American policy cloth to fit foreign interests.

This country has seen too much of political expediency which seeks votes regardless of the national welfare. Real statesmen will determine upon a course of action designed to advance this country's interests. They will not sell out to those who would undermine this government in the hope of attracting a few votes.

HARD TO SCARE

IF THE American people believed half the scare talk currently being indulged in by those in military authority they might as well give up and invite Stalin to come over and take charge.

Both Secretary Marshall and Defense Mobilizer Wilson contend the nation is in imminent peril, meaning war. Senator Lodge insists the United States is no longer strong in the air, and Russia has this country hanging on the ropes both ways from the jack. Army Secretary Pace tells Congress the nation may be in a third world war at any moment.

All this sounding of alarms has caused little concern in the minds of the people. They understand the noise is largely propaganda in behalf of bigger appropriations for defense and other purposes. For example, it would cost $40 billion a year to finance Senator Lodge's demands for increased air power, a sum which Congress hasn't considered seriously in view of the nation's financial situation.

The American people are not noted for crossing a bridge until they come to it. Nothing short of a declaration of war will put them in a fighting mood.

WASHINGTON—Alaska is on the same latitude as Norway and Sweden. If it had a population density equal to the average of those Scandinavian nations, its inhabitants would soar from about 100,000 to more than 12 million. Alaska's resources, a bulky report released by the Department of the Interior indicates, could support a population up to 10 million.

Alaska's remoteness has caused many Americans—including congressmen—to be apathetic regarding the vast region's development. And Alaska's far northern position has caused numerous misconceptions about its present and future value to the nation.

Prepared for the information of Congress, the Interior report contains facts that deserve the attention of the whole American public. Here are some things you may not know about our northern territory.

Alaska is one-fifth as large as the United States, and it extends one-sixth of the way around the world at that latitude. It has an estimated 180 billion board feet of merchantable timber, in some of the finest forests in the world, yet a substantial part of its lumber is imported from the United States.

Alaska possesses undeveloped potential oil wells, and yet it imports $10 million of petroleum each year. Freight rates to Alaska are so high they cause all commodity prices to skyrocket, because manufacturing has not been developed in Alaska and many of the ships have to return empty.

Alaska is estimated to have 17 million acres of land suitable for farm crops and grassland for livestock, and yet it imports much of its food. Alaska's vast river system, offering 3,000 miles of navigable

Interior Department Report Reveals Potential

● RUSSIA ACROSS "STREET"—Alaska lies only 56 miles across Bering Strait from Soviet Russia's Siberia, and its 33,000 miles of fiord-notched coastline create a major problem of coastal defense.

Gold has always been the chief center of mining activity in Alaska, but numerous other metals and strategic minerals badly needed in today's defense efforts lie locked in numerous deposits awaiting the key of human ingenuity and enterprise. Alaska's topsy-turvy economy is again illustrated by its coal. With resources believed to exceed 110 billion tons, Alaska in 1945 imported coal valued at $464,000.

Long-range planners in Alaska look upon northwestern America as an economic unit, including Canada's northwest, particularly northern British Columbia and the Yukon which both border Alaska.

Canadian studies of future potentials of their part of this region indicate that natural resources there could support six million persons. Combine this six million with Alaska's potential 10 million and you have a population two million greater than Canada's present total population.

● U. S. CANADIAN CO-OPERATION—United States and Canadian co-operation in developing this northwest corner of the continent is highly important.

Mineral resources of Canada's northwest, compilers of the report suggest, might best be shipped to Alaskan tidewater plants for smelting, processing, manufacturing and marketing. Canada's northwest, furthermore, when populated would be a nearby market for Alaskan products.

Sometime when Moscow replaces the present Kremlin conspirators with statesmen desirous of co-operating to develop the world's potentials for the good of mankind, it will be possible to establish a Bering Strait link between the highway and railway systems of the Americas with those of Asia, Europe and Africa. This is a geographic and scientific possibility as soon as men decide to use their resources for constructive purposes instead of wasting them in warfare.

Meanwhile, we need to face today's facts and strengthen Alaska's defenses to assure that Russia shall not make an invasion springboard of this sparse and undeveloped region which Congress has been too apathetic even to convert into a state.

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

I see by the London Sunday Dispatch that Margaret Truman is a columnist. Into this calling she goes by proxy, speaking her column to one Stanley Frank. All-in-all, the young lady is doing remarkably well, making, in fact, a more telling record than the Roosevelt children.

Miss Truman is, in many respects, her father's best press agent. She describes him with deep sensitivity as a nervous father who tears programs at his daughter's concert. It is a touching scene of the natural, unaccustomed man who feels as most of us do about our children. Even Presidents are human—which they must be or what else could they be?

In fact, most of this story is not about Margaret at all but about Harry before he ever became a President and was just a man, a husband, and a father of an only child in Independence, Mo., where the Trumans lived with his wife's parents.

There he liked to play the piano while his sister, Mary, sang. Margaret calls it "an impromptu duet recital."

It is all so much like the lives we all lived back in the days before we became involved in international affairs and got to know the difference between the Russian Malik and the Lebanese Malik.

Those were the happy days and Harry Truman, like most Americans, was trying to earn a living. Times were not too good for him back there. He had not yet found himself. That was to come later in association with Pendergast.

Margaret gives her own and her father's musical credo as follows:

"I must confess we're strictly a long-hair family from way back. We always have preferred classical to popular music."

"I don't want to sound stuffy about this, but I suppose the early indoctrination in serious music Dad gave me is the reason why I didn't moon over crooners and torchy lyrics during adolescence."

"Don't get me wrong. I love dancing—it's the only exercise I get now."

From Mozart to jive is quite a hop, skip, jump or flop, whichever word you wish to use, but a good press agent should be modern and as like the common man as possible.

Maybe this gives the clew to Harry Truman's political strength: He is the ordinary man.

As Margaret describes him, he is one of the most ordinary of them. There is power in that in a country like ours, which reacts violently to great changes. After the extremely complex Franklin D. Roosevelt comes the simple, ordinary Harry S. Truman.

He is the same kind of man from whom you buy your groceries. In fact, he is the same kind of person as most of us—knowing enough but not too much; understanding more than he knows; living with his family, bothered only with the little things in life, like his daughter calling everybody "Dearie," which got him sore. You know how that is, the kids picking up a word and working it to death.

And then comes that heroic moment in every father's life when he tells his child, usually a son, that he will back him in anything he wants to do. By that time, the child is really an adult and will do as he chooses, anyhow. Margaret tells it this way:

"I'll back you in anything you want to do," Dad said, "I'm tickled to death that you're thinking of music. But first I want you to go to college and get your degree."

Vigilance Is So Important In Treating A Head Injury

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IN dealing with head injuries, so prevalent in these days of automobile accidents, it is of great importance that the patient be carefully examined at once and observed for a period of weeks thereafter.

When such a case is first brought to the hospital, the physician must immediately determine whether or not the patient is in shock, a condition which can be remedied by the giving of salt solution into a vein. Rarely, whole blood or plasma may be required.

Maintenance of Breathing

Another prime consideration is the maintenance of adequate breathing. If there is some obstruction to the breathing, or if there is unconsciousness, a tracheotomy (the making of an opening in the trachea, the tube leading from the throat to the tubes of the lungs) may be performed.

The patient should be placed on his stomach with his head turned to one side. This allows the secretions from the throat to drain out.

Brain Hemorrhage

In coma or sudden unconsciousness, the patient should be carefully watched, for this usually indicates the presence of brain hemorrhage in about 25 per cent of the cases. In this event, the skull may be opened by the brain surgeon, the site of the possible hemorrhage sought and the bleeding checked.

(Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The pupils should be carefully watched, since a difference in the size of the two pupils may also mean the presence of hemorrhage.

Changes in the pulse rate, the blood pressure and the breathing rate may also give an indication as to the extent of the head injury.

Spinal Puncture

A puncture of the spinal canal is advisable in every case of head injury, to establish whether or not any bleeding into the brain has taken place. This should be done cautiously, for it may prove injurious if too much fluid is removed. Skull X-rays should be taken in all cases of head injury to make sure no fracture is present. Any drug that depresses the individual, such as a narcotic, should be avoided.

In all cases of head injury, careful vigilance is the important rule to be followed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. J. J.: What causes numbness of the arm and shoulder with needle-like sensations between the shoulder blades?

Answer: Numbness of the arm and shoulder may be due to a number of different conditions. Circulatory disorders, disturbances of the muscles, joints, or nervous system may be responsible. It is possible that some disturbance of the upper part of the spine may be a factor.

You are in need of a thorough study by your physician.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

RUBY was a lovely woman, Tonto told himself, and very disturbing. He quietly studied her. She had the swift enthusiasms, the quick, decisive speech of Lois King, but there the resemblance ended. Ruby was excitement, swift and hungry. She had a magnetic quality that drew a man, a subtle promise in the full lips and the deep eyes. Perhaps Tonto read her wrong, and he would readily admit it. He was attracted to the woman and he knew he could love her. But that love would have a stormy life, devastating as lightning while it lasted, but of short duration. For another man, Ruby might be entirely different.

Ruby stirred and smiled at Tonto. "I'm through being mad," she said, simply. "You had a right to ask. What else do you want to know?"

"Nothing," Tonto answered, "about the killing. But you can tell me what you like about yourself."

"I! You've heard it, Tonto, a hundred times. You've known the cantina girls. What else am I?"

"I don't know," he said soberly. "You puzzle me and I can't read your brand. Maybe you're cantina girl, but there's something a whole lot more besides. I wish I knew."

She looked sharply at him and seemed to decide that he had not given her a labored compliment. Her lips parted and a new light came in her eyes.

"It's the old story, only true this time. I came west from St. Louis. In those days I sang and danced a little and I was pretty bad. But I was sure that I'd be a great entertainer someday. I played a showboat for a while—ran away from home. It wasn't nice at all. I learned a great many things that were pretty sickening, but I didn't learn enough to know I'd never come up to my dreams."

"Maybe not—"

"Thanks, Tonto, but don't try it. I know now. I'm happier, once I got it out of my system. Well, I headed west. I played little spots in Kansas and Nebraska, some of the mining towns in Colorado. The showboats were a kindergarten compared to some of those places."

"About then I decided that I'd reached my peak. Have you ever known yourself to be completely and finally whipped and not willing even to admit that?"

"No," Tonto said.

"It's dreadful. You fight against it but you know you won't get anywhere. That's what I did, down where."

through Colorado and into New Mexico. Just a cantina girl, maybe not so hard as some of them. I'm to be nice to the customers. I'm the little girl who draws them back to the place. It's a cheap game, Tonto—and now I come here and forget it for a few hours. I'm just nice to the men, understand, nothing more. Those are my terms. At a couple of places they wouldn't believe me, so I came to the Golden."

She paused, half expecting Tonto to question her. He didn't and both of them were silent for awhile. Ruby sighed.

"Neither did Ad Gilpin until we had an argument about it. He agreed I'd be just nice—no more. So I've been here ever since."

"There's no other saloon in Av-rillo," Tonto suggested.

"No, Ad has no competition. But he's made his money and he likes class. He thinks I give it to the Golden. It's his money and my grubstake. Av-rillo's no worse or better than any other cowtown. There you have it."

"What about Rick—and Bart?" Tonto said abruptly.

"Rick was a sweet kid," Ruby said. "He was wild and foolish, but he had a way about him that was hard to fight against. He was filled with sudden and crazy notions. I was one of them. He was engaged to a girl at the time, I heard."

"He was," Tonto said.

"I see you have been working. Lois King would have helped Rick more than any other woman. I'm sure of that. I tried to tell Rick he was foolish but he wouldn't listen."

Her voice drifted off and she closed her eyes. Tonto watched her. She took a deep breath.

"I couldn't just cut Rick Staples short, for I didn't want to hurt him. So I was nice and kept him at a distance, hoping he'd get tired and go somewhere else. He didn't. Someone got him—out there."

"I've heard talk about—Overby," Tonto suggested gently. Ruby's eyes opened.

"Bart, yes. He's been nice and I like him. He has been my best friend and I know he's in love with me."

"Then why not—?"

"Marry him?" Ruby said. She leaned forward a little. "I might have, a little while ago. Then something happened. You came to Av-rillo."

Tonto jerked upright. "I! What did I have to do with you and Bart?"

"You're a menace to my moral courage, Tonto. I think crazy."

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Money, candy and cigars made up the loot stolen from the home of Ralph Jones of Logan street sometime Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk Cupp of West Main street are the parents of a son born at 12:55 p. m. Tuesday in Berger hospital.

Miss Mary Ebert and Mrs. Richard Fellmuth have returned from a 10-day vacation trip to Butler, Pa.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. James Reichelderfer of East Union street left Saturday for a vacation trip to Indianapolis, Ind.

Mrs. James Price was honored last night by a miscellaneous show given by Miss Betty Bach and Miss Medreth Bach.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tipton of Williamsport entertained with a steak roast at their home last evening honoring Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth List and son, Don Allen.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Turney Shellhammer and Rodney Thornton have gone to Columbus where they will accept positions with the Pennsylvania railroad shops.

Paul Ferguson, son of Rev. O. L. Ferguson of East Ohio street, was injured while standing near Joe Moats which was cranking a Ford which was in gear. The auto pushed young Ferguson up against another car.

Miss Mary Albertine Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Patton of Columbus, is spending the week with her grandmother, Mrs. Carrie A. Patton of West Mound street.

Bennett Cerf's Try, Stop Me

You hear a lot about Father's Day and Mother's Day and such-like, but down in Norristown, Pa., at least, it looks like an outstanding event is going to be Old Maid's Day. Last year 28 unmarried ladies of uncertain vintage up and proclaimed the first Saturday in June as their own particular day, and staged an honest-to-goodness banquet to cap off the festivities.

Townfolk not only applauded, but two local gents came forward with proposals of marriage. Approving letters poured in from cities as far away as Melbourne, Australia, and Stadt Lengsfeld, Germany. This thing may spread!

Sandwiched between a half-dozen very prominent writers, a lad of six suddenly startled the lot of them by announcing, "I began work today on my new play." When the laughter subsided, the father said indulgent-

Pickaway Plains Chapter DAR Seeks Books On Ohio Pioneer Families

State Librarian Issues List

Part of the task of insuring the American way of life for future generations is the preservation of the heritage that has been passed on to the citizens of today.

For that reason, Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of American Revolution are endeavoring to find the owners of several books containing information concerning the early history of this state, needed by the Ohio society of DAR.

A list of "Ohio wanted books" has recently been released in an effort to bring these copies from the attics or back shelves of private libraries in Pickaway County.

Anyone having a copy of one of these publications or knowing someone who has, may contact either Mrs. Emerson Spicer, chapter librarian or Mrs. Donald H. Watt, chapter regent. The list, issued by Mrs. Russell M. Bowers, DAR state librarian, is as follows:

"History of Dayton, With Portrait and Biographical Sketches of Some of Its Pioneers and Prominent Citizens." United Brethren Pub. House, Dayton, 1889.

"Miami County, Combined Atlas, Directory," giving the names, occupations and nationality of nearly 10,000 business men, farmers, etc. Compiled by G. E. Farnes, Springfield, 1883.

"Brief History of the Family of Nathan Allen and Mary Putnam, His Wife, Late of Fort Plain, Montgomery County, N. Y., and Other Families, A. D. Allen, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. 1895.

"Ethian Bancroft's Ancestry and Descendants." More recent dates and material on several allied families has been added here to an article published in the 1907 number of Old Northwest Genealogical Quarterly. Leulla B. Fant. 1932 (?)

"Record of the Family of Charles Beatty, Who Emigrated from Ireland to America in 1729." Charles G. Beatty. Steubenville, Ohio. 1857.

"Genealogical and Biographical Account of the Family of Bolton in England and America." Robert Bolton. New York, 1862.

"Fenton, Family history of Jeremiah Fenton (1764-1841) of Adams County, Ohio and His Descendants." William B. Brown. Des Moines, Iowa. 1910.

"Lamberton, Memorial of the Hon. Robert Lamberton (with genealogy)." S. J. M. Eaton. Franklin Pa. 1885.

"Bullard, Arnold Bullard and Related Families." Chester A. Bullard. 1935.

Sale Of Candy, Pop Ban Asked By National PTA

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers is urging that sales of soda pop, candy and other confections be banned from the nation's schools.

The congress' executive committee warned that "many children spend lunch money for these less nutritious foods."

In addition to the loss of a balanced diet, the children also are deprived of a "valuable" chance to learn good nutrition habits, the congress said.

The congress noted that the council on foods and nutrition of the American Medical Association warned recently that "carbonated beverages should not be sold on school premises" and that "there is merit to the suggestion" that zoning laws prohibit the sale of candy near schools.

Pickaway Plains Chapter DAR Seeks Books On Ohio Pioneer Families

State Librarian Issues List

Part of the task of insuring the American way of life for future generations is the preservation of the heritage that has been passed on to the citizens of today.

For that reason, Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of American Revolution are endeavoring to find the owners of several books containing information concerning the early history of this state, needed by the Ohio society of DAR.

A list of "Ohio wanted books" has recently been released in an effort to bring these copies from the attics or back shelves of private libraries in Pickaway County.

Anyone having a copy of one of these publications or knowing someone who has, may contact either Mrs. Emerson Spicer, chapter librarian or Mrs. Donald H. Watt, chapter regent. The list, issued by Mrs. Russell M. Bowers, DAR state librarian, is as follows:

"History of Dayton, With Portrait and Biographical Sketches of Some of Its Pioneers and Prominent Citizens." United Brethren Pub. House, Dayton, 1889.

"Miami County, Combined Atlas, Directory," giving the names, occupations and nationality of nearly 10,000 business men, farmers, etc. Compiled by G. E. Farnes. Springfield, 1883.

Sale Of Candy, Pop Ban Asked By National PTA

CHICAGO, Aug. 17—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers is urging that sales of soda pop, candy and other confections be banned from the nation's schools.

The congress' executive committee warned that "many children spend lunch money for these less nutritious foods."

In addition to the loss of a balanced diet, the children also are deprived of a "valuable" chance to learn good nutrition habits, the congress said.

The congress noted that the council on foods and nutrition of the American Medical Association warned recently that "carbonated beverages should not be sold on school premises" and that "there is merit to the suggestion" that zoning laws prohibit the sale of candy near schools.

BY NEWMAN CAMPBELL.
THE MATTER of tax payments and honesty in all our business, including our governmental relations, is a most timely one. Tax evasions and immorality in high places is constantly being brought to our notice through investigations and stories in our newspapers.

It was also a problem in Jesus' day. The Jewish people bitterly resented the tax that their master, Rome, imposed. Bitterness had been growing against the tax, and when the episode occurred which St. Luke relates in our lesson today, hatred for this new gospel which Jesus preached also reached a high pitch.

The event occurred on Tuesday of Holy Week. The authorities of the temple and the orthodox Jewish leaders were determined to find some excuse for taking Jesus into custody and having Him killed. They feared the people, however, so instead of going to arrest Him, they sent spies, who "feigned to be just men," to try to catch Him in a statement that would give them an excuse to seize Him.

These spies approached the Master and began to question Him in most flattering words: "Master, we know that Thou sayest and teachest rightly, neither acceptest Thou the person of any, but teachest the way of God truly: Is it lawful for us to give

Paul, in entering the temple at this time, had taken with him some Gentiles. They listened to what he had to say, but then they cried out, "Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not fit that he should live."

Fearing Paul would be killed, as the crowd milled around, the Roman captain who had been viewing the scene of mob violence from a tower overlooking the temple courts, sent his soldiers to rescue Paul and take him to the castle, where the captain would have him beaten to find out what criminal action of his had caused the riot.

Paul was bound and about to be scourged when he spoke to the centurion who stood by, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?"

The centurion immediately went to the chief captain, and told him: "Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman."

The chief captain asked Paul if he indeed was a Roman, and Paul answering yes, the chief captain said: "With a great sum obtained I this freedom" (he had been a slave). Paul answered, "But I was born free."

Those who would have examined Paul then departed because they were afraid. Next day the temple authorities were summoned to appear before the Roman tribunal and state their case against Paul. At tribute unto Caesar, or not?"

Jesus knew them for the hypocrites they were, and asked them why they tempted Him. Then He asked to be shown a Roman coin, and when it was shown Him he pointed to it and asked: "Whose image and superscription hath it?" "Caesar's," they answered. Jesus said, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things that be God's."

That completely baffled them and they said no more. Possibly those who overheard, learned a lesson, too. It may have made them less resentful toward Rome and the tax. The coins were Caesar's, and the Jews were under the protection as well as the rule of Rome. We, too, accept all the benefits of our government, but are apt to squirm when our taxes are due and feel abused to have to pay them.

Near the end of Paul's third missionary journey, he desired to go to Jerusalem. His friends warned him that it would be dangerous for him to enter the city, but he insisted.

Now, Paul, having been a member of the Pharisaic party and a Hebrew, was permitted to enter the temple at any time. He had, however, aroused the bitter hatred of the Jews because he preached to Gentiles. They were determined to put him to death.

Some thought, wrongfully, that this time a great dissension broke out among the Jews themselves, one group wanting to set Paul free and another desiring to slay him. Again he was rescued by the Roman soldiers and kept in custody for his own safety.

A plot was on foot to kill Paul, however, the moment he should be freed, but a young man—Paul's sister's son—told Paul of the plot, and Paul told the centurion, who took the young man to the chief captain, and that officer decided to send Paul to be tried at Caesarea, heavily guarded by Roman soldiers.

You see, whatever hardships the Romans imposed upon their captive people, their laws were just.

Paul later wrote to the Romans: "Rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same."

Peter wrote: "For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men: as free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God."

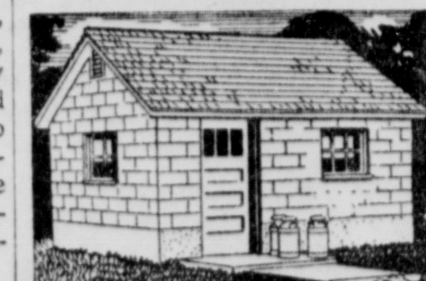

To "silence the ignorance of foolish men," and not to use the liberty we have in our country "for a cloak of maliciousness," is indeed a necessary warning to-day.

Jesus knew them for the hypocrites they were, and asked them why they tempted Him. Then He asked to be shown a Roman coin, and when it was shown Him he pointed to it and asked: "Whose image and superscription hath it?" "Caesar's," they answered.

Jesus said, "Render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things that be God's."

That completely baffled them and they said no more. Possibly those who overheard, learned a lesson, too. It may have made them less resentful toward Rome and the tax. The coins were Caesar's, and the Jews were under the protection as well as the rule of Rome. We, too, accept all the benefits of our government, but are apt to squirm when our taxes are due and feel abused to have to pay them.

Near the end of Paul's third missionary journey, he desired to go to Jerusalem. His friends warned him that it would be dangerous for him to enter the city, but he insisted.

Now, Paul, having been a member of the Pharisaic party and a Hebrew, was permitted to enter the temple at any time. He had, however, aroused the bitter hatred of the Jews because he preached to Gentiles. They were determined to put him to death.

Some thought, wrongfully, that this time a great dissension broke out among the Jews themselves, one group wanting to set Paul free and another desiring to slay him. Again he was rescued by the Roman soldiers and kept in custody for his own safety.

A plot was on foot to kill Paul, however, the moment he should be freed, but a young man—Paul's sister's son—told Paul of the plot, and Paul told the centurion, who took the young man to the chief captain, and that officer decided to send Paul to be tried at Caesarea, heavily guarded by Roman soldiers.

You see, whatever hardships the Romans imposed upon their captive people, their laws were just.

Paul later wrote to the Romans: "Rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same."

Peter wrote: "For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men: as free, and not using your liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood Fear God."

To "silence the ignorance of foolish men," and not to use the liberty we have in our country "for a cloak of maliciousness," is indeed a necessary warning today.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

AIRFORCE EXPANSION

Editors appear to divide into three roughly equal groups on Rep. Vinson's call for an air force of 163 groups. Some editors argue the now probable strategy of a general war calls for a new balance in the armed services, with an air force approaching, if not equaling, Vinson's goal. Others contend the cost of such an air force would change too much the balance between services, and endanger the nation's economy. Editors in the third group reserve conclusions of opinion, but question now whether strategy would justify whether the economy should be required to support, at this time, an air force even approaching Vinson's goal.

SAN DIEGO Union (Rep.):

"Nothing more encouraging has been reported from Washington for a long time than the statement of Rep. Vinson, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, calling for an air force of 163 groups and two more carriers of the United States type. This is realism in defense. It is recognition of a fact palpable even to the non-military mind that our security is primarily in the skies. . . . We may skimp in other places. But let us not underestimate the vital importance of our air defense."

LITTLE ROCK Democrat

(Ind.-Dem.): "The point is the need for balance in our armed forces. No one has denied our air power weakness. But it must be pointed out that our Army and Navy also could be stronger. If the air force feels it has been neglected and can prove it, this arm should be brought to par. But we have only so much money to be spread over so many jobs. A 163-group air force would be nice to have, as would an invincible Army and Navy overnight. Unfortunately, we lack the Aladdin's lamp needed right now to produce all these nice things."

SAN FRANCISCO Chronicle

(Ind.-Rep.): "The successes of the Chinese Communists, along with the Korean war, have created the prospect that a third world war, right from the outset, will have to be fought all around the world, as intensely in one place as in another. . . . This argues for placing the major emphasis . . . upon those branches where we have demonstrated great and unique capacity. . . . the Airforce and the Navy. . . . It argues for a relatively small, highly trained, superbly equipped, highly mobile American ground force to provide punch."

leadership and aid to allied ground forces."

NEW YORK News (Ind.): "An group is made up of from 30 to 75 planes. We now have some 87 groups, and the target strength for months has been 95. Most of the experts have been agreed, as we understand the matter, that a 95-group air force would be sufficient for our needs, provided the Navy had ample air strength of its own. Mr. Vinson now proposes, out of a clear sky, almost to double the present size of the USAF. . . . Let's have a lot of informed discussion and airing of all available expert opinion before we go for Vinson's proposal or anything approaching it. At this time, it sounds fantastic."

WASHINGTON Star (Ind.):

"The reasoning which underlies the current agitation for a vast expansion of our air power is logical and persuasive. . . . Those who say this can and must be done argue why not build an air force that can rule the skies, and exercise the same influence for peace, or for victory if war comes, that the British Navy was able to exercise during the long years it enjoyed control of the seas. . . . Senator Lodge says we still have an advantage—though a waning advantage—over the Russians in strategic air power. He warns, however, that we are outclassed by Soviet tactical aviation and air defense."

WASHINGTON Post (Ind.):

"America's real strength lies not in the all-out production of existing models, but in the ability to keep a balance between current production and experimentation. . . . In this respect 163 air groups would be a milestone. . . . Moreover, there is also the danger that all-out concentration on air power would what what has become a base-mania and induce efforts to obtain bases virtually under Stalin's mustache. How much this would provoke

Colonel Claims Ordnance Depot Operating OK

TOLEDO, Aug. 17—Col. S. W. McIlwain, commanding officer of the Rossford ordnance depot near Toledo, said today he knows of no irregularities at the depot or even of any congressional investigation.

"We are compiling with all the rules and regulations," McIlwain said in commenting on reports that a House expenditures subcommittee had uncovered evidence of irregular conduct by depot procurement officers.

McIlwain said all the contracts during his tour of duty have been awarded on the basis of competitive bids.

"All I know of irregularities is what I have been reading in the newspapers and I believe the charges are unfounded," he said.

In Washington yesterday, Rep. Hardy, (D) Va., chairman of the subcommittee, said a probe of pricing practices in the automotive parts field showed that certain officials "have engaged in improper dealings with concerns having contracts with the depot."

the Russians is hard to say, but certainly this country would react violently in a similar situation."

YOUNGSTOWN Vindicator

(Ind.-Dem.): "Mr. Vinson joins Senator Lodge in urging the necessity of a big and rapid buildup of air power. It is impossible in modern warfare," he says, "to avoid or postpone decisive action in the air. . . . Senator Lodge estimated that his plan for 150 air groups would cost $96 billion over a three-year period — an amount which he admitted would endanger the nation's economy. . . . Mr. Vinson's financial figures are to come later. . . . Certainly the program would end the balanced force idea among the three armed services."

Feed Markets Show Strength In Last Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Feed markets strengthened slightly during the last week, despite fairly plentiful offerings of wheat millfeeds and oilseed meals.
Agriculture Department officials said the demand for wheat millfeeds became more active in the last few days, stimulated by the drought the southwest and the larger takings by feed manufacturers for immediate shipment.

Officials believe that one of the most important factors in the feedstuff markets this season has been the excellent condition of pastures in the central, northern and eastern feeding areas.

Mid-Summer grazing for livestock has rarely been surpassed for the country as a whole and the condition of pastures averaged 86 percent of normal.

In the Central Plains, Corn

Belt and Great Lake states, July rains were abundant and pasture feed was exceptionally good for this time of the year.

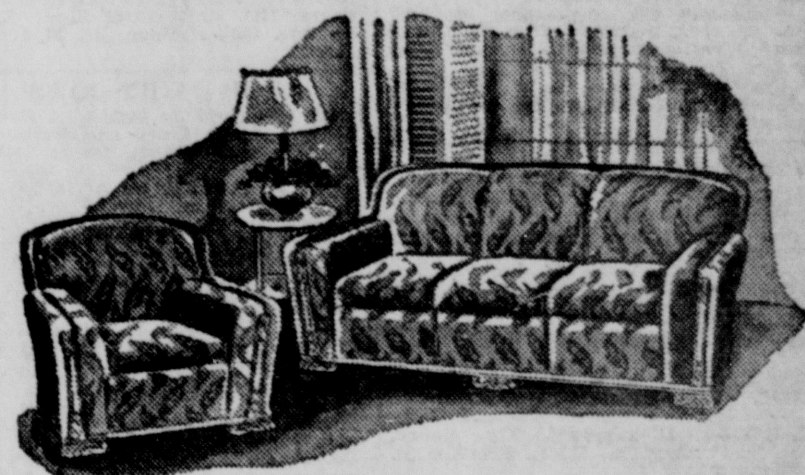

In the north central part of the nation, livestock had the best mid-Summer feed in more than a third of a century. Pastures in the North Atlantic states have been the best since 1947.

Only in the South was the picture of pasture prosperity broken, conditions were not nearly so good as last year because of dry weather through most of July.

Editors' Roundtable

"Editors' Roundtable" is a twice-a-week release based on a study of an average of about 150 daily newspaper editorial pages. The major issue of the day is analyzed and digested, passed on to readers as a survey of opinion from the nation's leading editors. It is the "voice of the press."

AIRFORCE EXPANSION

Editors appear to divide into three roughly equal groups on Rep. Vinson's call for an air force of 163 groups. Some editors argue the now probable strategy of a general war calls for a new balance in the armed services, with an air force approaching, if not equaling, Vinson's goal. Others contend the cost of such an air force would change too much the balance between services, and endanger the nation's economy. Editors in the third group reserve conclusions of opinion, but question whether strategy would justify whether the economy should be required to support, at this time, an air force even approaching Vinson's goal.

SAN DIEGO Union (Rep.):

"Nothing more encouraging has been reported from Washington for a long time than the statement of Rep. Vinson, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, calling for an air force of 163 groups and two more carriers of the United States type. This is realism in defense. It is recognition of a fact palpable even to the non-military mind that our security is primarily in the skies. . . . We may skimp in other places. But let us not underestimate the vital importance of our air defense."

LITTLE ROCK Democrat (Ind.-Dem.):

"The point is the need for balance in our armed forces. No one has denied our air power weakness. But it must be pointed out that our Army and Navy also could be stronger. If the air force feels it has been neglected and can prove it, this arm should be brought to par. But we have only so much money to be spread over so many jobs. A 163-group air force would be nice to have, as would an invincible Army and Navy overnight. Unfortunately, we lack the Aladdin's lamp needed right now to produce all these nice things."

SAN FRANCISCO Chronicle (Ind.-Rep.):

"The successes of the Chinese Communists, along with the Korean war, have created the prospect that a third world war, right from the outset, will have to be fought all around the world, as intensely in one place as in another. . . . This argues for placing the major emphasis, upon those branches where we have demonstrated great and unique capacity. . . . the Airforce and the Navy. . . . It argues for a relatively small, highly trained, superbly equipped, highly mobile American ground force to provide punch."

SHORT-CUT IN MAKING SILAGE

Here's a sturdy machine which provides a real short-cut in the making of corn or sorghum silage. In one power operation, the Case field forage harvester cuts the standing row crop, chops it into short, uniform lengths, and loads the chopped material into truck or wagon driven alongside or trailed behind. Also may be equipped with pick-up attachment for windrowed hay crops, green or dry. See us about it.

Colonel Claims Ordnance Depot Operating OK

TOLEDO, Aug. 17—Col. S. W. McIlwain, commanding officer of the Rossford ordnance depot near Toledo, said today he knows of no irregularities at the depot or even of any congressional investigation.

"We are complying with all the rules and regulations" McIlwain said in commenting on reports that a House expenditures subcommittee had uncovered evidence of irregular conduct by depot procurement officers.

McIlwain said all the contracts during his tour of duty have been awarded on the basis of competitive bids.

"All I know of irregularities is what I have been reading in the newspapers and I believe the charges are unfounded," he said.

In Washington yesterday, Rep. Hardy, (D) Va., chairman of the subcommittee, said a probe of pricing practices in the automotive parts field showed that certain officials "have engaged in improper dealings with concerns having contracts with the depot."

The Russians is hard to say, but certainly this country would react violently in a similar situation."

YOUNGSTOWN Vindicator (Ind.-Dem.):

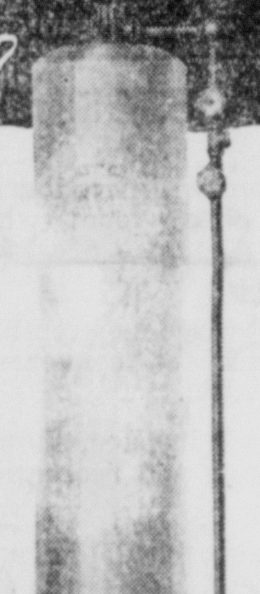

"Mr. Vinson joins Senator Lodge in urging the necessity of a big and rapid buildup of air power. 'It is impossible in modern warfare,' he says, 'to avoid or postpone decisive action in the air. . . . Senator Lodge estimated that his plan for 150 air groups would cost $96 billion over a three-year period — an amount which he admitted would endanger the nation's economy. . . . Mr. Vinson's financial figures are to come later. . . . Certainly the program would end the balanced force idea among the three armed services.'"

Feed Markets Show Strength In Last Week

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—Feed markets strengthened slightly during the last week, despite fairly plentiful offerings of wheat millfeeds and oilseed meals. Agriculture Department officials said the demand for wheat millfeeds became more active in the last few days, stimulated by the drought the southwest and the larger takings by feed manufacturers for immediate shipment. Officials believe that one of the most important factors in the feedstuff markets this season has been the excellent condition of pastures in the central, northern and eastern feeding areas. Mid-Summer grazing for livestock has rarely been surpassed for the country as a whole and the condition of pastures averaged 86 percent of normal. In the Central Plains, Corn Belt and Great Lake states, July rains were abundant and pasture feed was exceptionally good for this time of the year. In the north central part of the nation, livestock had the best mid-Summer feed in more than a third of a century. Pastures in the North Atlantic states have been the best since 1947. Only in the South was the picture of pasture prosperity broken, conditions were not nearly so good as last year because of dry weather through most of July.

Complete Ohio Hunting-Fishing Map Is Readied

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Ohio hunters and fishermen have been told that a new improved and highly informative stream and hunting area map now being prepared by the Wildlife Division, will be available within the next two weeks.

The new map will be one of the most complete ever compiled. It will contain, on one side, a complete layout of the state highways, along with the major fishing streams. On the other side will be a detailed stream and tributary map with all of the state hunting areas superimposed upon it.

Other informative material such as how to identify the six fish families and where certain species of fish are found in Ohio, plus a listing of the six district wildlife offices, will be placed around the rim of the two colorful maps.

The Ohio Wildlife Council has directed that the map be sold for 10 cents.

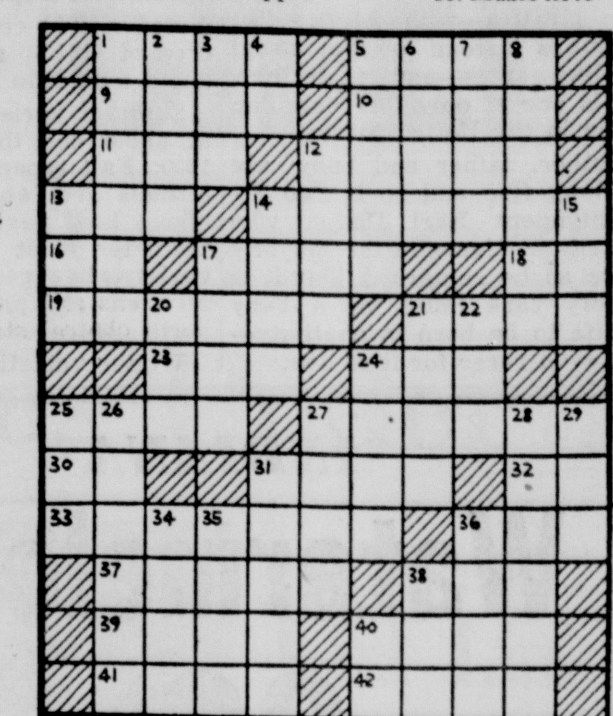

To obtain one, send a dime to the Ohio Division of Wildlife Public Relations section, 1500 Dublin road, Columbus. Each application will be recorded and the map sent as soon as they are available.

Container Posts 7-6 Win In New Industrial Loop

Circleville Container softballers posted a narrow 7-6 victory over Lawless of Commercial Point the tightest game to date in the new industrial league in Ted Lewis Park.

Both teams were scoreless in the first frame, while both surged back strongly in the second to collect four runs each.

Container tallied three markers in the third of its victory while holding lawless to two runs in the seventh.

One of the eight original teams in the new loop has dropped out because of trick work. The spot filled by Circleville Plastics is expected to be filled by a Kingston team.

Schedule of games in the city park for next week in the league is: Harpster and Yost vs. new team, Monday; General Electric vs. Scioto Elks, Tuesday; Lawless vs. Circleville Oil, Wednesday; and Kingston vs. Container, Thursday. All games will begin at about 8:15 p. m.

Sokolosky's These Days

By the time Harry Truman has moved up from Independence and the Wallace household and is President of the United States, it is a tremendous transformation.

The humble, little, ordinary man has become a great man. He no longer is limited to playing duets with his sister, Mary; the whole world is his sounding board and everything he says and does is important. He no longer needs to get by; he has everything.

This is a wonderful moment for Margaret Truman. Ordinarily, she would have had to be auditioned; run from one agency to another looking for work. Now all the world wants to know if the President's daughter really can sing. If Harry Truman did nothing else, he arranged it so that Margaret Truman had a short-cut to make good in her chosen field. No father could do more.

1,800 Entered For $250,000 Trapshoot Test

VANDALIA, Aug. 17 — More than 1,800 Dead-Eye Dicks and Annie Oakleys literally begin shooting for $250,000 and 35 national championships here today in the 52nd Grand American trapshoot.

The marksmen, who launch a three-day warmup period today and gun for the championships Monday, come to the Montgomery County community from every state in the Union, Canada's provinces, Cuba, the Canal Zone and other sundry points.

The sport's most coveted title American Handicap—will go on the line Aug. 24, the day before the trapshoot is over. No person has ever won the handicap twice in 51 years although it has gone to shooters ranging from 14 to 70 years of age.

As has been the case in years past, the favorite will be Joe Heistand, Hillsboro farmer, Heistand, who has won every other world trapshoot title at least once, never has copped the coveted Grand American.

PROBABLY the main reason why he has failed is because officials invariably handicap the brilliant marksman as far back of the firing line as possible. For the last six years, he has shot the Grand from the clubhouse steps.

Ray Lorin, manager of the Amateur Trapshooting Association, said 17 carloads of clay targets—or a million and-a-half of the clay pieces—will be powdered during the week and that the tiny lead pellets in the shotgun shells would spray a 40-ton barrage before the long firing line.

The opening champion ship program calls for a 200-target 16-yard race in which the veterans', husband-wife, parent-child and brother-brother titles will be decided. A special 100-target race for state champions also is scheduled.

Demon Hanover Wins Feature

WESTBURY, N. Y., Aug. 17—Demon Hanover won the $5,000 Freeport free-for-all trot Wednesday at Roosevelt Raceway.

Bob Walker drove the six-year-old horse to a three-length victory over Darn Flashy, in 2:04 2-5 over a damp track with Hadley Hanover finishing third.

Demon Hanover, owned by Harrison Hoyt of Bethel, Conn., took over the lead from Darn Flashy at the half pole and was in command of the situation the rest of the distance. It was the fifth win of the season for Demon and boosted his earnings over the $20,000 mark for the season.

Complete Ohio Hunting-Fishing Map Is Readied

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Ohio hunters and fishermen have been told that a new improved and highly informative stream and hunting area map now being prepared by the Wildlife Division, will be available within the next two weeks.

The new map will be one of the most complete ever compiled. It will contain, on one side, a complete layout of the state highways, along with the major fishing streams. On the other side will be a detailed stream and tributary map with all of the state hunting areas superimposed upon it.

Other informative material such as how to identify the six fish families and where certain species of fish are found in Ohio, plus a listing of the six district wildlife offices, will be placed around the rim of the two color maps.

The Ohio Wildlife Council has directed that the map be sold for 10 cents.

To obtain one, send a dime to the Ohio Division of Wildlife Public Relations section, 1500 Dublin road, Columbus. Each application will be recorded and the map sent as soon as they are available.

Container Posts 7-6 Win In New Industrial Loop

Circleville Container softballers posted a narrow 7-6 victory over Lawless of Commercial Point the tightest game to date in the new industrial league in Ted Lewis Park.

Both teams were scoreless in the first frame, while both surged back strongly in the second to collect four runs each.

Container tallied three markers in the third for its victory while holding Lawless to two runs in the seventh.

One of the eight original teams in the new loop has dropped out because of trick work. The spot filled by Circleville Plastics is expected to be filled by a Kingston team.

Schedule of games in the city park for next week in the league is: Harpster and Yost vs. new team, Monday; General Electric vs. Scioto Elks, Tuesday; Lawless vs. Circleville Oil, Wednesday; and Kingston vs. Container, Thursday. All games will begin at about 8:15 p. m.

1,800 Entered For $250,000 Trapshoot Test

VANDALIA, Aug. 17 — More than 1,800 Dead-Eye Dicks and Annie Oakleys literally begin shooting for $250,000 and 35 national championships here today in the 32nd Grand American trapshoot.

The marksmen, who launch a three-day warmup period today and gun for the championships Monday, come to the Montgomery County community from every state in the Union, Canada's provinces, Cuba,

Pickaway County Air Tour Is Scheduled For Sept. 12

Soil Group Is Arranging Plane Trips

Conservation To Be Stressed

The first annual Pickaway Soil Conservation Air Tour is to be held Wednesday, Sept. 12, at Thomas air field west of Circleville.

According to the board of supervisors of the local Soil Conservation Service, whose members are sponsoring the event in cooperation with interested groups in the county, purpose of the flights is to acquaint both town and rural people with Pickaway County's greatest source of revenue, agriculture.

A carefully planned aerial trip will reward those participating in the air tour.

The tour will be approximately 55 miles in length and will require about 30 minutes of time in the air.

Several times as many miles by auto could not give the picture of the county as it is seen from the air nor could a surface trip show the relationships that exist between different areas.

Flights will start about 9 a. m. and will continue on until dusk.

More 'Freedom' Balloons Sent Toward Commies

MUNICH, Aug. 17—Four million more freedom messages to people under the Communist thumb in Czechoslovakia were released in 2,700 balloons yesterday by the Western Crusade for Freedom organization.

Taking advantage of good winds, the 70-man crew working in Bavaria near the Czech border began releasing more balloons in what is the fourth such operation that began Monday night.

The balloons borne on 50-mile-an-hour winds raced toward the Communist-ruled capital of Prague and the Bohemian province of the former republic.

Some of the balloons are designed to burst at 32,000 feet altitude and shower the leaflets on the countryside. Another type settles to earth with its messages.

Sara Churchill Given Big Cigar

BURLINGTON, Ont., Aug. 17—Sara Churchill helped pick Miss Canada of 1951 and then was herself awarded a prize—a giant cigar.

But Police Chief Howard Nickling of Burlington, who handed out the cigar, cautioned Miss Churchill that she mustn't smoke it—it's for her father, Former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The actress was one of six judges who picked Marjory Alma Kelly, 23-year-old music student, as Canada's fairest.

He Can't Give Away The $700

WILLOUGHBY, Aug. 17—That old adage about it being tough to make a dollar may be true, but did you ever try to "give away" $700 just for the asking?

Max Rautenberg of nearby Kirtland found $700 neatly wrapped in a handkerchief in front of his fruit stand Aug. 5 after a customer's car had pulled away.

Rautenberg, a fruit grower, would like to return the money to its rightful owner. He has contacted police departments of three states and advertised in several newspapers without any results.

If the owner fails to claim the money he will turn it over to the Salvation Army.

Glass Workers To End Strike

TOLEDO, Aug. 17—Employees of the Kimble glass division of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. in Toledo have voted to accept a company proposal for settlement of an eight-day old strike.

Federal Conciliator Harry Gray said the company proposal was accepted at a meeting yesterday of workers, members of AFL-American Flint Glass Workers Union, Local 320.

A company spokesman said the plant will resume production as soon as it can be put in operation. The company makes television tubes.

Airforce Man Is Killed In Colorado Holdup

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 17—An Airforce sergeant from Brooklyn was shot and killed Tuesday in a holdup-robbery near the fashionable Broadmoor hotel in Colorado Springs.

Sgt. Martin Bursey, 20, was driving a hotel limousine with two passengers when the gunman drove alongside and forced him to the roadside.

Bursey's passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Chase of Des Moines, Ia., told authorities the gunman "just walked up to the cab" and shot the driver through the head.

The killer then robbed Chase of $300 and fled in a black sedan. Chase drove the fatally-wounded Bursey to the hotel from where he was transferred to Camp Carson hospital. He died an hour later.

Bursey drove the hotel cab during his off-duty hours.

Columbus Zoo Has New Baby

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Hansel and Gretel had a baby so the Columbus Zoo has a new $4,000 asset.

Hansel and Gretel are reticulate giraffes—with block-like markings instead of the usual leaf-like spots—and their new son is one of only three similar babies in the United States.

Mother, father and baby are all doing fine and so is Zoo Superintendent Earl Davis, who passed out cigars in the mayor's office as he remarked that it is a very rare thing for a baby giraffe to be born in captivity—and even rarer for it to live.

Apple Crop To Be About Like 1950's

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Agriculture Department has predicted a 1951 commercial apple crop of 121.3 million bushels, about the same as last year.

Summer varieties are forecast at about one third more than 1950. Fall types, at 17,292,000 bushels are about 18 percent above last year's crop. Jonathan, the most important Fall variety, has good prospects in all areas and particularly in the north central states.

Winter varieties are down six percent from last year's good crop but 13 percent above average. Delicious production is down about a third from last year. Prospects for this most important variety are very good in all sections, except the northwest. Production there is indicated at about half of 1950.

McIntosh, the second most important Winter type, is forecast at about the same as last year, but 37 percent above the average production.

One License Tag Seen For 1953

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—State Highway Director T. J. Kauer announced today that Ohio cars probably will have only one license plate in 1953—and that one will be yellow on dark green.

Kauer said the state will have the normal two plates only if more steel becomes available. He said the state asked the National Production Authority July 24 for an allocation of 1,600 tons of steel—enough to provide two plates for every car, but the NPA has taken no action.

Pickaway County Air Tour Is Scheduled For Sept. 12

Soil Group Is Arranging Plane Trips

Conservation To Be Stressed

The first annual Pickaway Soil Conservation Air Tour is to be held Wednesday, Sept. 12, at Thomas air field west of Circleville.

According to the board of supervisors of the local Soil Conservation Service, whose members are sponsoring the event in cooperation with interested groups in the county, purpose of the flights is to acquaint both town and rural people with Pickaway County's greatest source of revenue, agriculture.

A carefully planned aerial trip will reward those participating in the air tour.

The tour will be approximately 55 miles in length and will require about 30 minutes of time in the air.

Several times as many miles by auto could not give the picture of the county as it is seen from the air nor could a surface trip show the relationships that exist between different areas.

Flights will start about 9 a. m. and will continue on until dusk.

FLYING FARMERS J. Fred McCoy of Mt. Sterling and Howard Thomas flew Jim Muster and Don Archer of the local Soil Conservation Service to the Delaware Air Tour Wednesday where nearly 200 people had taken plane trips before 3 p. m.

All airplanes are flown by licensed commercial pilots and all machines are subject to frequent rigid inspection.

Heading the air tour committee is Robert Elsea, local airport owner. McCoy and James D. Fortney of Orient represent the Flying Farmers.

Dr. Richard Samuel of the Kiwanis club, Lawrence Liston of Rotary and M. C. Lambert of the Lions club, Roger May of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Larry Best of the Extension Service and Ralph Young of the Ohio Board of Aviation attended the organization meeting.

Men, women and children from both urban and rural districts are being invited to take in the Soil Conservation air tour this year.

Medina Sheriff Is Accused Of OKing Gambling

MEDINA, Aug. 17—Medina County Sheriff Charles Williams faces a hearing Monday on charges that he failed to enforce gambling laws.

A housewife, Mrs. Isabella Riddell of nearby Brunswick, swore out the warrant yesterday. Two weeks ago she signed an affidavit accusing Alvin Wolff, president of the Brunswick Chamber of Commerce, of permitting gambling at a carnival.

The sheriff appeared before Justice of the Peace Edward Bolger of Brunswick yesterday and the case was continued until Monday. He was freed under $200 bond.

Mrs. Riddell charged that the sheriff was negligent in his duty by permitting gambling at the recent charity carnival held by the suburb's Chamber of Commerce.

More 'Freedom' Balloons Sent Toward Commies

MUNICH, Aug. 17—Four million more freedom messages to people under the Communist thumb in Czechoslovakia were released in 2,700 balloons yesterday by the Western Crusade for Freedom organization.

Taking advantage of good winds, the 70-man crew working in Bavaria near the Czech border began releasing more balloons in what is the fourth such operation that began Monday night.

The balloons borne on 50-mile-an-hour winds raced toward the Communist-ruled capital of Prague and the Bohemian province of the former republic.

Some of the balloons are designed to burst at 32,000 feet altitude and shower the leaflets on the countryside. Another type settles to earth with its messages.

Sara Churchill Given Big Cigar

BURLINGTON, Ont., Aug. 17—Sara Churchill helped pick Miss Canada of 1951 and then was herself awarded a prize—a giant cigar.

But Police Chief Howard Nickling of Burlington, who handed out the cigar, cautioned Miss Churchill that she mustn't smoke it—it's for her father, Former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

The actress was one of six judges who picked Marjory Alma Kelly, 23-year-old music student, as Canada's fairest.

He Can't Give Away The $700

WILLOUGHBY, Aug. 17—That old adage about it being tough to make a dollar may be true, but did you ever try to "give away" $700 just for the asking?

Max Rautenberg of nearby Kirtland found $700 neatly wrapped in a hankerchief in front of his fruit stand Aug. 5 after a customer's car had pulled away.

Rautenberg, a fruit grower, would like to return the money to its rightful owner. He has contacted police departments of three states and advertised in several newspapers without any results.

If the owner fails to claim the money he will turn it over to the Salvation Army.

Glass Workers To End Strike

TOLEDO, Aug. 17—Employees of the Kimble glass division of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co. in Toledo have voted to accept a company proposal for settlement of an eight-day old strike.

Federal Conciliator Harry Gray said the company proposal was accepted at a meeting yesterday of workers, members of AFL-American Flint Glass Workers Union, Local 520.

A company spokesman said the plant will resume production as soon as it can be put in operation. The company makes television tubes.

Airforce Man Is Killed In Colorado Holdup

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 17—An Airforce sergeant from Brooklyn was shot and killed Tuesday in a holdup-robbery near the fashionable Broadmoor hotel in Colorado Springs.

Sgt. Martin Bursey, 20, was driving a hotel limousine with two passengers when the gunman drove alongside and forced him to the roadside.

Bursey's passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Chase of Des Moines, Ia., told authorities the gunman "just walked up to the cab" and shot the driver through the head.

The killer then robbed Chase of $300 and fled in a black sedan. Chase drove the fatally-wounded Bursey to the hotel from where he was transferred to Camp Carson hospital. He died an hour later.

Bursey drove the hotel cab during his off-duty hours.

Columbus Zoo Has New Baby

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Hansel and Gretel had a baby so the Columbus Zoo has a new $4,000 asset.

Hansel and Gretel are reticulate giraffes—with block-like markings instead of the usual leaf-like spots—and their new son is one of only three similar babies in the United States.

Mother, father and baby are all doing fine and so is Zoo Superintendent Earl Davis, who passed out cigars in the mayor's office as he remarked that it is a very rare thing for a baby giraffe to be born in captivity—and even rarer for it to live.

Apple Crop To Be About Like 1950's

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17—The Agriculture Department has predicted a 1951 commercial apple crop of 121.3 million bushels, about the same as last year.

Summer varieties are forecast at about one third more than 1950. Fall types, at 17,292,000 bushels are about 18 percent above last year's crop. Jonathan, the most important Fall variety, has good prospects in all areas and particularly in the north central states.

Winter varieties are down six percent from last year's good crop but 13 percent above average. Delicious production is down about a third from last year. Prospects for this most important variety are very good in all sections, except the northwest. Production there is indicated at about half of 1950.

McIntosh, the second most important Winter type, is forecast at about the same as last year, but 37 percent above the average production.
